Workplace readiness traits describe a number of, commonly expected skills that employers seek from most employees. Work readiness skills are a set of skills and behaviors that fall under Social, Interpersonal, and Independent Living Skills and are necessary for any job. Work readiness skills are sometimes called soft skills or employability skills.

These abilities help employees learn how to interact with supervisors and co-workers. They help reinforce the importance of timeliness and build an understanding of how we are perceived by others. Employers value employees who can communicate effectively and act professionally. No matter what technical skills a job may require, every job requires good Social skills/ Interpersonal and Independent Living skills.

The Anthracite Region Center for Independent Living will work directly with your transition age students, offering Schools and School Districts a variety of workplace readiness educational opportunities...
